2 November 1944

751st Squadron

Hersburg, Germany

Approximately 40 enemy aircraft bounced group at about 1248 to 1253, 17 to 27 minutes after bombs away, in area between above coordinates (5135-1125 to 5110-1110). They attacked from the tail between 5 and 8 o'clock. They came in in waves, but each of them appeared to single out an individual B-17 to attack. There were a number of reports from crew members about unidentified B-17's going down, but none of them identified aircraft #43-37766.

seen by Scarborough Lady Margaret
A/C #43-37782 was hit in tail and in No. 3 engine, which caught fire. Fire was seen coming out of radio room and under ball turret. The A/C exploded at 25,000 feet. After A/C was hit in tail and No. 3 engine, which caught fire, A/C stayed in formation several minutes. The A/C then peeled off and it was then that fire was seen coming out of the radio room and under ball turret. The A/C exploded at 25,000 feet. One chute was seen right after the A/C peeled off. Two to eight other chutes were reported to have opened later.

The forward part went down in a steep glide for upwards of two minutes, then went into a spin and disappeared in the clouds. Tail part went down not in a glide. No fires were seen. No parachutes were seen.

Gunnery Training for month of November

Gunnery training this month followed regular lines -- gunners trained on Jan Handy, British type Free Gunnery Trainer, Preventative Maintenance, and Gunnery Lectures.

The building of a classroom by gunnery instructors, was a high point in the month's activities. Approximately 12' by 24' by 7', it is equipped with hand made benches and tables, and also contains a small coal stove for warmth. This classroom facilitates training, it affords a warm dry place for lectures and when not in use for lectures, it is used as a reading room for those gunners whose time for synthetic training is not yet due.

The erection of a sign enables new gunners and passersby to learn the location of Gunnery Training.

OPERATIONAL NARRATIVE

Mission #128

MAGDEBURG

28 September 1944

Thirty-six A/C were dispatched by the 457th on this date to destroy the Krupp Works Machine Shop in Magdeburg. This plant employing 35,000 people produces Mark IV tanks and flak guns. Eight groups of the 1st Division were to go in on Magdeburg ahead of us, our group comprising the 9th "C".

With Major Porenich as Air Commander, the ships took off at 0800 hours under lousy conditions and 1-2/10 ceilings. Because of clouds, the assembly was made at 10,000 feet - 2,000 higher than the briefed altitude. The formation left the English coast at Wlacton in its proper position in the Division line-up.

Entering the Belgium Coast at 0954 hours the formation flew south of course and was about 20 minutes behind time. The course over enemy territory was flown in trail of the wing leader. Northeast of Luxembourg the group turned left up to the I.P.

Just before reaching that point the group was attacked by 25 to 50 ME-109's and FW-190's. The attacks began at about 1146 hours, the majority of them coming from 1 to 9 o'clock low and directed at the tail. Most of the E/A approached to within 100 to 300 yards before pulling away in a pursuit curve. Our claims on this attack were 11 E/A destroyed, 4 probably destroyed, and 2 damaged. Six of our aircraft were lost to the enemy fighters.

One more B-17 went down to flak at the target, which although moderate in intensity, was fairly accurate.

At 1158 hours the group released its bombs over the target by PFF, since the area was obscured by 8-9/10 clouds at 15,000 feet. At the time of bombs away, the formation was flying a magnetic heading of 96 degrees and the altitude was 26,000 feet.

Due to the fighter attack our group was forced to overshoot the I.P. but the formation later was able to come back on course.

A little difficulty was encountered with the PFF equipment 5 minutes before the B.R.A., but the equipment became operative again and the run was successfully completed.

The flight was flown from the target in trail and in proper position. A normal let-down was begun over the North Sea.

The planes landed at 1410 hours with a total of 12 receiving minor damage and 3 major. One man was wounded and 63 were missing.

Mission #129

MISSION

30 September 1944

Flying "B" Group of the 9th CGW, the 457th on this date set off to bomb the vital Railroad Junctions at Amber. At the same time the 40th and 41st CGW's took off to bomb Landorf, while targets for the 2nd and 3rd Divisions were Hum and Bialfeld, respectively.

With Col. Bogner as Air Commander, the planes left the base at 1022 hours under a sky half covered with cumulus up to 14,000 feet. Assembly was carried out on Clatten Rancher at the briefed altitude of 17,000 feet, and the group flew the planned route over England. The Division assembly line was flown without incident, with the group assuming its proper position in the general formation on time and on course.

At 1242 hours the formation left Orfordness and entered the Belgium coast to encounter 9/10 cumulus. From this point to the target, what with tops of the clouds reaching to 25,000 feet, it was quite evident that bombing would have to be done by PFF.

Turning into the target at a magnetic heading of 125 degrees, the lead squadron began an instrument bomb run. About three miles from the B.S.I., the bombardier was able to see glimpses of the city. He then released his load on the same of other impacts in the town itself. At the time of bombs away (1354 hours) the formation was flying at 27,000 feet.

Although flak at the target at this point was only moderate, it was accurate enough to hit the deputy lead ship, #43-38538, piloted by Lt. Milles. The nose crumpled down, parts of both wings fell off and the plane went down out of the formation. Two eights were observed by witnesses.

After some trouble with their PFF equipment, the low squadron finally made a successful run when the equipment began to function normally again. Through an opening in the clouds, hits were observed in the city.

For the high squadron no pilotage points were visible. Four dropping angles were given to the Bombardier by the "Slooy" operator, but then the bombing circle went out. As bombs were released a clearing could be seen below, but landmarks were not identified.

After bombs away, the formation proceeded on the return route approximately as briefed. The base was reached at 1600 with a toll of one aircraft missing to flak. No enemy aircraft had been encountered.

Mission #130

KASSEL

2 October 1944

Major Snow led the 457th today to bomb the Ordnance Depot at Kassel, Germany. Our 36-ship formation was 2nd in the Division over this target, while the 41st CGW ten 12-ship squadrons on targets in Cologne.

[REDACTED]

At 0656 hours, the planes took off under a clear sky. Assembling on Clacton Bunker at 11,000 feet, the group flew the route over England approximately as briefed. The group was in its proper position in the Division formation, the Division assembly line having been flown on course and at proper altitude. However, a change in winds caused the 457th to be 3 minutes late, and to continuously lose time enroute to the target.

Entering the continent over Belgium the formation flew a direct NE course to a point just east of Frankfurt. From there the group swung NE into the I.P., which was reached at 1040 hours - 7 minutes behind schedule.

The turn at the I.P. was made about two miles northeast of course and the bomb run was taken up on a magnetic heading of 156 degrees. The target was approached on a combination visual and PFF run. The lead squadron sighted for both rate and course for the entire group. The high squadron bombed in group formation, while the low squadron, following in trail, released its bombs on the smoke markers of the lead squadron.

Approximately 8/10 clouds existed at the I.P., necessitating an initial PFF run. At the last minute, however, it was decided to bomb the primary visual. Although it was practically obscured by clouds, the HPI was identified and the bombs were dropped at 1054 hours from 25,000 feet. The lead squadron carried 100500 lb GP's and the high and low squadrons carried 100000 lb's.

Results of the bombing were fair. A concentration of 60 HE bursts was observed along the southern edge of the target area with two bursts on buildings within the area. Thirty scattered bursts were plotted east and south in open fields and ten bursts in the town one mile east of the target area. Although the B's covered the area between the autobahn and the target, extending 3000 feet south of the target in open fields, numerous bursts were observed in the target area itself.

Flak at the target was moderate but very accurate and lasted for approximately 5 minutes.

Fighter support at this point was excellent. After bombs away, the formation proceeded on the return route about seven miles left of course and approximately twelve minutes late because of the time initially lost on the route into the target. The English coast was reached over Clacton after a normal low-down through about 5/10 cumulus over the North Sea.

At 1411 the planes landed. One plane piloted by Lt. James W. Franklin crash-landed in Belgium, but the entire crew returned a few days later none the worse for their experience.

Mission #131

COLOGNE

5 October 1944

Although each of the three squadrons of the group was assigned its own

[REDACTED]

target on this day, 10/10 clouds caused the whole formation to attack the secondary target (Cologne 1/2) by HF. The primary target for the Lead Squadron was the Ford Motor Plant near Cologne. For the Low Squadron it was the oil refinery near Düsseldorf. The primary target for the High Squadron was to have been a portable gas producer plant just west of Cologne.

We were 6th of 9 groups in the Division on targets in the Cologne Area, Air Commander of the group being Lt. Col. Wilson.

Taking off at 0745 hours under 0/10 strato-cumulus, the group assembled at briefed altitude plus 2,000 feet on the Clutton Buncher. Route over England was flown as briefed, and at the Division Assembly Line the group assumed its proper position.

Entering the Belgian coast at Ostend, the formation headed NE to Hijnegon. At this part of the flight the Division began to drift left of course, causing the group to end up NE of the I.P.

The bomb run was flown north of course consequently, on a magnetic heading of 115 degrees. At 1111 hours, the lead squadron released its bombs from 25,700 feet after a run on AFM. The high squadron dropped on the same marker of the lead aircraft. Hindered by poor visibility and dense persistent contrails, the low squadron had to make an individual run, since the lead squadron was hidden from view by thick stratus.

Over the target, heavy, accurate flak lasted for approximately 5 minutes. After bombs away, the three squadrons became separated because of prevailing weather conditions. The high squadron climbed to 30,000 feet, while the other two flew through the haze and contrails at the briefed altitude. The group was told to come in over England about ten miles north of course by cycle relay.

A normal let-down was begun over the Channel and at 1330 hours the formation landed at the base. Aircraft No. 14-6088 landed at Antwerp with #1 and #2 engines out, but the crew subsequently returned safely.

Fighter escort throughout the mission was very good. Complete cloud coverage over the target made bombing results unobserved.

Mission #132

STARGARD

6 October 1944

Overcast at the primary (Palitz, Germany) caused the 457th to attack the secondary target which was an airfield at Stargard. Led by Lt. Col. Francis the group took off at 0750 hours as other groups in the Division became airborne to attack the same target and an airfield at Neubrandenburg. An armament shop at Stettin was also to be bombed by the 1st Division.

After assembling over the Buncher at 7,000 feet to get over clouds, the group reached control point #1 on time and in proper position in the Division formation. The route over the North Sea was flown as briefed. After crossing control point #3 the group began to "S" on course to allow the 1st "A" Combat Wing (flying parallel to the left and out of position) to get in front in order to prevent any difficulties on the bomb run.

[REDACTED]

Just before reaching the I.P., word was received from the weather aircraft that the primary was obscured by clouds. It was then decided to attack the secondary target.

The secondary was attacked visually by all three boxes, the run being made on AFUE. The lead squadron picked a new I.P. in order to avoid the flak from Stettin and proceeded on the bomb run on a magnetic heading of 69 degrees. The MPI was not sighted until about twenty seconds before the D.R.L., because smoke from the bombs of previous groups obscured it. No other difficulties were encountered, however, and the 10K500lb GP's were dropped at 1311 hours from 25,000 feet. The bombs were exceptionally well-aimed, since 85% of them fell within the 1000 foot circle, the general build-up of the pattern being heavier to the right of the assigned MPI.

For the low squadron, smoke covered the MPI and made it extremely difficult to locate the Aiming Point. The bombardier was unable to see the ground until the squadron was over the target and the center of the pattern appeared about 1600 feet beyond the assigned MPI and close to that of 351st Group.

The high squadron attacked on a magnetic heading of 75 degrees and dropped its bombs at 1312 1/2 hours. Since smoke covered the MPI, triangulation had to be used. Haze and 1/10 clouds hindered the sighting, and the bursts that were visible in photographs indicated a pattern that fell short of and to the right of the assigned MPI.

Nevertheless the falling bomb clusters indicate that the three elements of the squadron were closely positioned longitudinally. The 2000 foot width of the pattern is about correct for the lateral spacing in the formation.

No flak was encountered over the target and fighter support was good. The route from the target was flown as briefed until midway over the North Sea. At this point the group headed left of course because it was behind the main formation.

The planes landed at 1630 and it was found that none of them had suffered any damage.

POLITZ

7 October 1944

Although the synthetic oil plant at Politz, second largest of its type in Germany, had been attacked several times this year, it was again the target for this group today. The MPI assigned to the 457th was the distillation plant which had not yet sustained such damage. 36 A/G made up the 9th "A"

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

and 12 A/C the "D" composite.

We were the first of our groups in the 9th Wing over this target. Other forces were sent up to attack oil plants in Bruck, Ruhland, Bohlen, Mersburg and Latakenorf.

Carrying 100500 lb GP's, the planes took off at 0700 hours with Col. Luper in the lead. After assembling on the Clatton Buncher at 5,000 feet, the group flew the route over England on time and on course and assumed its proper position at the Division Assembly Line.

Because of winds, the group was about 5 minutes behind time in reaching the English coast. Once over enemy territory, however, the formation was able to gain two minutes arriving at the I.P. only 3 minutes late.

The lead squadron made the turn into the bomb run on a heading of 329 degrees magnetic. Visibility was excellent, but the target area was covered by a smoke screen, so that triangulation had to be used to locate the MPI. The lead A/C made the majority of the 8 1/2 minute bomb run but was hit by the intense flak just before the B.R.L. The plane opened its bomb-bay doors and closed them just before the B.R.L. without releasing the bombs. Apparently as a signal for the deputy to take over the lead. The No. 3 A/C was hit at approximately the same time, but it salvaged its bombs. Two other A/C in the squadron believing this to be the bombs of the lead A/C, toggled. The deputy lead A/C also experienced difficulty when it was hit near the B.R.L. The plane began to lose altitude rapidly and salvaged its bombs. Then the remaining six A/C toggled. No sighting operation was performed.

The low squadron crossed the I.P. on course and found the same conditions existing over the target area. Course was killed on the corner of the elongated woods short of the target. The rate fell on the "X" formed by the crossing of small rivers to the right of the target. Study of smoke bursts through the screen indicates that the bombs (dropped at 1257 from 21,800 feet) hit just short of the assigned MPI.

The bombardier of the high flight used triangulation to bomb through the smoke screen. The lead pilot, Capt. Mays, was killed about one minute before the B.R.L. Intense and accurate flak interfered with the bomb run, but the bombs were released at 1258 hours from 26,000 feet on a magnetic heading of 332 degrees. Study of bomb bursts showing through smoke on the GAV's indicates strikes just to the left of the assigned MPI.

The leader of the high flight in the lead squadron (Lt. Angier) took over the lead of the group and led it on the return route. Over the North Sea the group went considerably right of course. A normal let-down was accomplished and the formation proceeded toward England, swinging back to the left and entering the coast to the left of course. The planes landed at 1620 with 5 A/C missing. Planes #44-3046, 42-102905, and 44-6469 were hit by flak at the target, and up to 9 chutes were observed from the first ship. They were all in the lead squadron and commanded by Col. Inger -- Capt. Fischer, Lt. Jennings and Lt. Holand, respectively. It was later learned that Lt. Jennings' crew landed in Sweden with 1 man dead and 1 wounded who later died. A/C #13-38529 piloted by Lt. Salsar, was in the Low Squadron of the "D" composite group and ditched in the channel. The entire crew was safe. A/O #12-77638 (Lt. Flannery) in the lead of this Squadron was hit by flak in #3 engine. The plane dove under control and was not seen to hit or explode. Two chutes were sighted.

The low squadron, which we furnished to fly with the 351st group, attacked the primary target visually. The turn was made at the briefed I.P. and the bomb run was made on AFE on a magnetic heading of 303 degrees. The HPI was obscured by a smoke screen and the flak thrown up by Jerry was disturbingly intense and accurate. The lead squadron executed a 360 degree turn and the low squadron followed in trail. After crossing the I.P., the lead squadron made a 90 degree turn to the right, but the low and high squadrons headed straight on and released their bombs at 1306 hours. Flight altitude at this point was 26,000 feet. Just after bombs away the lead A/O of the low squadron was shot down.

The following Thanksgiving message was transmitted to personnel of this station by the commanding officer:

"Today Americans all over the world are celebrating one of our oldest holidays.

A year ago many of us observed this day in our own homes, or at least within the limits of our own country. This year, in England, on the Continent, and in the Pacific Area, we carry with us the traditions of this great holiday.

In spite of the fact that this Thanksgiving Day will be spent in unusual circumstances, far from home, there is much to be thankful for. We are closer to our goal. The prospects for the victory which we all desire are good, and we shall be proud to have had a part in its achievements.

I wish to extend my personal greetings to all personnel of this Station on this Thanksgiving Day and to hope that this day next year we will be able to be thankful for an accomplished victory and peace.

HARVEY E. ROOPER
Colonel, Air Corps,
Commanding."

RECREATION AND WELFARE

1. Special Services

Only one USO show played here during November, but "Take It Easy" was one of the best productions so far. The talented cast of three men and three girls entertained 1600 men at the Aero Club on 22 November. A troupe of English amateur entertainers presented a musical variety show on 16 November. What they lacked in ability, they made up for in enthusiasm, for they were people from Cambridge who although working at regular jobs during the day, banded together to entertain at various American and British Camps at night.

While the customary dances were held at the Aero Club, Officers Club and HCO Club, the decorative arrangements were influenced by Thanksgiving Day, 23 November. Turkeys, pumpkins and corn stalks were in vogue. The Officers Club Dance was held on 18 November with the HCO Club members tripping the light fantastic on Thanksgiving Eve. On 21 November the regular Friday night Enlisted Men's Dance also fell within the festive period.

With the touch football season drawing to a close basketball players were lining up their muscles at regular Wednesday practice sessions in the nearby Red Cross Gymnasium. Actually three teams have been formed - an all Officers team, an all Enlisted Men's team and a Post Team composed of Officers and Enlisted Men. Top season form has, of course, not as yet been reached, but the regular practice sessions, are beginning to show results.

Army Talks is maintaining its popularity, as indicated by the fact that Station 130 continued in first place in First Division. Purely military subjects were supplanted for a time by a topic which was of vital interest to the majority of personnel on the Station - The Cigarette Shortage - but the War in Germany still continued to be a lively subject of discussion. Enrollment in USAFI Correspondence Courses are steady with mathematics and business subjects enjoying popularity during November.

2. American Red Cross

A new G.I. House Committee was inaugurated this month, and they really put the Red Cross to work. They had dozens of ideas and every one of them was good.

Two of their suggestions concerned publicity for programs. One was to have the evening program announced over Tanney twice daily. Operations has given its permission. Another was to have programs published in the Daily Bulletin, and this is now being done.

The committee thought the bulletin board would be read more if small bulletin boards were placed on the posts on the servery in the snack bar, so that the boys would read them while they were in line for food.

They suggested that the Red Cross visit the boys in the hospitals once a week, so they could get some news from the base. The dispensary has arranged to send the staff to the hospitals in an ambulance, and one visit was already made. The Red Cross took the boys their mail, and were asked if they could do anything for them or bring them anything the next time they came. The boys seemed to appreciate these visits and wanted to know everything that had been happening at the base.

The song fests have always been held in the lounge. This month a new idea was tried. The piano was pulled out in the middle of the snack bar, and the boys sang or listened while they ate. It was a great deal more successful, because of its informality.

On Thanksgiving the men roasted wieners and popped corn over the fire. They gathered branches from the trees for the roasting sticks. A near tragedy was experienced with the wieners. The English staff misunderstood the plans and cooked all the wieners. Everyone thought the plans were gone with the wind, but the G.I.'s were not going to give up their roast that easily. They roasted them anyway. They looked a bit wrinkled and carcass by the end of the second cooking, but that was a minor matter. The popcorn turned out to be the center of attraction, because every boy had a different idea about how it should be popped. It was a show to see them each trying to outdo the other by turning out a better batch of corn. It seems it is quite an art to get all the kernels to pop and not burn any of them.

Pauline Early, the Red Cross pianist certainly struck the right chord. Before she had played three numbers, the men were wanting to know when she would have a return engagement.

Captain Clifton J. Chandler

Clifton J. Chandler has been promoted from the rank of first lieutenant to captain, it was recently announced by the commanding general, Eighth Air Force.

Captain Chandler is the group lead navigator of the 457th Bombardment Group. He has participated in many of the huge daylight precision bombing assaults of the Eighth Air Force, and his efficiency and ability in leading the giant swarms of Flying Fortresses to their targets has made him one of the outstanding navigators in this group. On several of the Eighth's deepest penetrations of the Reich, he led the entire division, and on two occasions—highly successful assaults on the tank and gun-carried manufacturing center at Bielefeld and the synthetic oil plants at Lutskendorf—he charted the course in the Fortress that led the entire Eighth Air Force. Among the missions which Captain Chandler flew as wing navigator were the recent successful poundings of the ball and roller bearing factories at Schweinfurt, the attack on the aircraft and industrial plants at Berlin, and the one on the aircraft experimental plants at Gdynia.

On D-Day he led again; this time it was to blast the enemy defenses along the coast of France to pave the way for the invasion of Western Europe.

Aside from flying bombardment missions, Captain Chandler has other duties that keep him hard at work, night and day. He trains new navigators in charting and plotting courses with the aid of the latest techniques and gives them advice from his experiences.

[REDACTED]

In his combat career, Captain Chandler has been decorated with the Air Medal and three Oak Leaf Clusters "For exceptionally meritorious achievement." Prior to his entry into the Army Air Forces in 1940, Captain Chandler was employed as the manager of a branch store by the Danville Grain Company.

[REDACTED]

1st Lt. John C. Fonda

1st Lt. John C. Fonda of Belmont, Massachusetts has been decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross, and is a navigator of one of the Fortresses on this station.

He has participated in many huge daylight precision bombing assaults on industrial and military objectives in Germany and Nazi occupied Continental Europe. Among the targets were those located in Munich, Hamburg and Frankfurt.

In addition to the Distinguished Flying Cross, he has been awarded the Air Medal and three Oak Leaf Clusters.

He is a graduate of the Valley Forge Military Academy, Wayne, Penna. He then entered the University of Michigan to study chemical engineering and was a student there prior to his entry into the Army Air Forces in May 1942.

SECRET

[REDACTED]

On the 2 November mission to Harsburg the group experienced a vicious fighter attack 15 minutes after it had dropped its bombs. The sky over the target for several minutes was an inferno of falling, burning planes. It was a day that would be long remembered by those fortunate to come through that holocaust unscathed.

When the din of air battle had subsided, several of those who had taken their toll of enemy fighters crystallized in writing those few fleeting moments of death in the sky. Following are their accounts:

CONTENTS

It was the Harsburg Area today, and the last words said in the briefing room were "Watch out for enemy fighters."

We got to our plane, which was old OZL "Mission Maid", 1st Lt. Salsor "The Wheel", the nickname that our crew gave him, was the Pilot and Commander of our ship and crew. We had been through several tough ones together and this was to be another one to talk about later.

The assembly and the trip over were as usual and everything looked okay until we noticed that there was only light flak over the target. You could just sense that trouble was brewing. On the bomb run everything went well and our fighter escort were with us. Just after bombs away, enemy jet propelled planes appeared in a big group at nine o'clock high. At that time I was cranking up the bomb bay doors; hearing the report coming over the interphone "Bandits at nine o'clock high", just as I finished, I quickly returned to my turret. At that time enemy fighters were called out at eight o'clock level and high, sliding toward the tail. I was watching the dog fight at nine o'clock. Then as the jets led our escorts away I glanced towards the tail and saw a company front of about 15 to 20 enemy planes coming in high from about 5 to 7 o'clock with another front just behind them about level. The planes were identified as Focke Wulf 190's.

Every man on the ship was at his position, T/Sgt. Robert D. Genger of Liverpool, Ohio was in the tail, S/Sgt. Mack Mitrenga of Chicago, Illinois was in the ball, S/Sgt. Ben W. Harriok of San Diego, Cal. manned the left waist gun, T/Sgt. Vincent Tobi of Gary, Ind. was our radioman, and I was in the top turret. Lt. William Steffen of Greensburg, Pa. our barber, was on the chin turret, while our pilot, Lt. Ernest T. Salsor of Philadelphia, Pa. and co-pilot, Rex R. Houston of Ocala, Illinois, had to sweat it out over the controls.

"Pilot to Radio, you had better man the waist gun," were the very next words heard over the interphone. "I'm here," was his reply.

I picked one out at five o'clock high, the tail gunner had one picked for himself at about six o'clock and the ball turret picked one out of the third wave, the only wave in his view.

[REDACTED]

The first two waves came in wiping out most of our box, but most of them were also wiped out. The plane I was shooting at went over our tail and tore off his left wing on the right vertical stabilizer of our left wingman. I saw that our left wingman was on fire behind his number three engine and that he had begun to peel off. I swung my guns back to five o'clock again as the pilot, using evasive action, dropped the plane about 25 to 50 feet, leaving the FW190's shooting over us at the spot that we had just vacated.

The next plane that I fired at went over the top of us and straight down in front of our nose. "There's one for you, Stef," I called over the interphone and the bombardier poured lead into him as he went down in flames. At about that time five FW 190's were falling around us as the third and last wave started to come in. They were more broken up than the first two waves because some of them were picking out the straggling forts as they fell in flames.

Our low box now consisted of only two forts. The rest were scattered all over the sky. There were both forts and bandits falling down all around us.

As I brought my guns back to 6 o'clock two more were coming in close to our tail, one high at 5 o'clock and the other directly on our tail somewhere under us. I could hear the ball turret gunner firing away. I started firing at the one at five, and the radio gunner was also firing at him. He started to smoke as he fell off our right wing, and down under our belly he burst into flames. The other one lost his prop and blew up about 25 feet from our tail.

It was over! What had seemed like hours, had only been between 3 and 5 minutes. Nine of our forts didn't come back, but we took our toll of the FW 190's. We are sure of the planes credited to us and know that many of the gunners on the unlucky forts took their toll of enemy planes with them. The other boxes had their share of kills too.

It's a great satisfaction to have been able to help reduce the striking powers of the Luftwaffe. Our crew worked like a clock, due to our other rough missions together, but actually the good Lord rode with us and protected us.

— T/Sgt Jack P. Scarborough, 751st Squadron

Everything happened pretty fast that day as it usually does when the Germans offer any opposition.

We had been off the bomb run about 10 minutes when vapor trails from fighters started to fill the sky. "Friendly or enemy aircraft?" was the question in every one's mind. But we soon learned the answer. They were

[REDACTED]

FW 190 and ME 109's forming for one of those wolf-pack attacks.

At first it appeared they were on the same level as our box, but as they came closer they lowered themselves for an attack on the low and lead boxes. Everyone of them followed his course except the leader who must have liked the look of one of the planes in our box.

I got my sights on him from about 600 or 700 yards as he made his attack from 7 o'clock. I could almost see the bullets hit home. As he got closer I could feel his 20 mm. bursts around me. At about 200 yards he seemed to stop dead. The ship rolled over, and the pilot came out. In a second later the plane burst into flames and broke into several pieces. The pilot didn't wait long to open his chute as I could see a chute open not too far beneath me. The chute attracted my attention because of its peculiar color.

Other gunners had quite a day too, as I could see several other enemy aircraft burning and exploding beneath me.

— S/Lt. Bernard F. Sitak, 749th Squadron

I was the tail gunner on our crew. That day we were flying ship #167. C. P. Sanderson was pilot. We were deputy lead in the high box.

We had already hit the target and started for home. At 6 o'clock I could see a lot of planes coming our way. At first I couldn't tell if they were fighters or bombers. As they came closer I knew they were fighters and coming our way. I called out over the interphone "Fighters at 6 o'clock low to level." I then called up the lower tail and told him to watch them because I had never seen our escort come in that way and so many planes together. I also called the top turret but his interphone was out and so was the pilot's.

Just as they came close enough for me to tell they were enemy planes, the co-pilot cut me off the interphone to tell us there were bandits in the area. By this time the fighters were attacking the lead and low box. I saw two B-17's go down, then the fighters came up to get us. As the first ME 109 came up to get us, I started tracking him. He came up from about 8 o'clock low on up to level with us. I shot a short burst at him when he was at 7 o'clock but had to stop as he moved in behind a B-17. As he came on over to 6 o'clock I opened up on him again. I never let up on the triggers till his engine started burning and he pulled up as if he were going over on his back. He was now at 5 o'clock. The way it looked to me, he went into a high speed stall then started down. I watched him till one of his wings came off then I knew he was gone.

I don't know much more about the fight because I was too busy with that one ship. I did see several more enemy planes firing at our squadron and saw one of our B-17's go down.

[REDACTED]

When the 109 was firing it looked as though the leading edge of his wing was all ablaze.

After the mission the ball gunner (Ed J. Zeitz) told me that he had seen the wing come off the plane just as I called up that I had knocked one down.

6. NOTICE: ATTN ALL PERSONNEL: The following letter from AMERICAN RED CROSS, APO 413, U. S. Army to Major General ROBERT B. WILLIAMS, Hq 1st Bomb Division, is quoted for the information of all concerned.

"Dear General Williams,

I should like to ask you to convey to all the units and personnel of your Command the deep appreciation of the American Red Cross for their contributions to our Prisoner of War Fund.

I feel that this gift is doubly significant not only because of the generosity which it evidences, but because of the spirit which prompted the giving. I know that each of the contributors hoped that this money could be used for sending individual gifts of comfort and greeting to their comrades of the 1st Bomb. Division in prison camps in Germany. However, the ever increasing successes of our Air Force and Armies during the past months have caused interference to supply routes and it has not been possible to send such individual packages. The decision of the men themselves to donate this collection to the American Red Cross to foster our effort in behalf of all prisoners of war is therefore received with full appreciation of the wishes of each of the contributors.

I would like to assure you and the members of your Command that we are unceasing in our efforts to provide every possible necessity and comfort for your colleagues in prison camps and we trust it will not be too long before we will have the opportunity of welcoming them all back.

Please accept again the gratitude of the American Red Cross for your generous donation."

AAF AID SOCIETY

In addition to regular memberships in the AAF Aid Society, provision is made for contributions to perpetuate the names of deceased persons. It is a means of honoring the memory of a relative or friend in a substantial way. The name and the date of the one so honored is inscribed in a leather-bound Memorial Roll as a permanent tribute to his memory. The bereaved family is then sent a card giving the name of the donor, but not the amount of the gift.

All funds, whether for memberships or memorials, will be used for the basic purposes for which the AAF Aid Society was formed - assistance in obtaining government benefits, education, vocational training and employment.

THANKSGIVING MESSAGE

Today Americans all over the world are celebrating one of our oldest holidays.

A year ago many of us observed this day in our own homes, or at least within the limits of our own country. This year, in England, on the Continent, and in the Pacific Area, we carry with us the traditions of this great holiday.

In spite of the fact that this Thanksgiving Day will be spent in unusual circumstances, far from home, there is much to be thankful for. We are closer to our goal. The prospects for the victory which we all desire are good, and we shall be proud to have had a part in its achievement.

I wish to extend my personal greetings to all personnel of this Station on this Thanksgiving Day and to hope that this day next year we will be able to be thankful for an accomplished victory and peace.
