Aircraft No. 42-102905 was not seen to be hit. All four engines were turning over OK when the aircraft dropped out of formation. Aircraft appeared under control for the few seconds that it was seen. Aircraft salvoed its bombs several seconds before the correct BRL and before the deputy lead. Aircraft has been reported by 8th A.F. through 1st Bomb Division as having landed in Sweden with two dead and one injured aboard.

750th Squadron

Politz, Germany

The #2 engine and perhaps #3 on Aircraft No. 44-38046 caught on fire. Aircraft went down in steep dive, spiral, or flat spin. Engine and piece of right wing came off. Then section of tail came off. Then plane blew up or fell apart; some pieces seen to land in Stettiner Haven. After #2 engine caught fire, aircraft dropped out of formation and went into steep glide, spiral, or flat spin. Apparently under control for a little while anyway. From two to nine chutes were reported; of these one was reported on fire as it left plane and another came out when the plane fell apart or exploded. Four chutes reported from the nose and three from the waist; the one reported on fire was from the waist. Aircraft apparently did not drop its bombs. Bomb-bay doors were seen to close near what should have been the correct bomb release line. Then aircraft was hit by flak. No release of bombs was seen.

Number 3 engine on Aircraft No. 42-97638 was on fire, apparently from a direct hit. Right wing also on fire. Flames reached out past tail. Aircraft had apparently leveled off when last seen. One man bailed out right after A/C was hit, but chute was not seen to open. Aircraft hit just after bombs away which was at 1306. After it caught fire it dove, as if pilot were diving to put out flames.

Aircraft No. 44-6469 apparently received a direct hit in nose, appeared to be under control as it dropped down and under the aircraft on its right. It was visible only for a short time. No chutes seen. What looked like arms and legs were seen to fly out of nose when aircraft was hit.

Cologne, Germany

Aircraft No. 43-37606 apparently hit by flak; one burst reported under each wing near fuselage, but no damage noted. Aircraft was apparently not out of control. It did a sharp bank to right, causing the two wing men to turn with it, until they realized it was leaving formation. Aircraft did about a 180-degree turn and left formation in glide. No smoke or fire seen. No chutes seen during the short time that aircraft remained in view. Aircraft left formation at about 0932 hours just before bombs away. Bomb bay doors were open when aircraft was last seen. Report received at home base from 1st Division 18 October 1944, stated aircraft had been found crashed at F-000250 (which will be approximately at 5037N-0620E).

Hamburg, Germany

Aircraft No. 42-97899 was hit apparently in right wing. It peeled off to right, as if leaving formation. Gasoline leak was observed. Aircraft started smoking, then flaming. Number 4 engine was feathered. Aircraft pulled up steeply, then went straight down. Right wing came off first; then left wing came off; then tail came off. Aircraft was apparently under control two or three minutes after being hit. Two chutes were reported to have come out soon after aircraft peeled off. Possibly two more were reported seen later.

Gunnery Training for month of October

Following is the resume of Gunnery Training in the 457th Bomb Group completed for the month of October 1944.

1. Jam Handy training -- six hours per day per training week. This training is given to all crew members using N6 and/or N8 sights in the waist, tail and nose positions.

2. Royal Air Force Free Gunnery Trainer -- six hours per day per training week. This trainer is used to give tracking and ranging practice to all ball turret, top turret and chin turret operators. This trainer incorporates a projector which flashes fighter attacks upon a semi-circular screen, enabling above named gun positions to track actual attacking fighters on the screen. It also allows positions using Sperry K3 and K4 sights full opportunity to practice proper ranging.

3. Preventive Maintenance -- one hour per day per training week. This training is given all operational crews whose duties require them to be familiar with the caliber fifty machine gun. Crews are given stripping, care and cleaning and functioning of the weapon.

The amount of training mentioned above indicates training given by gunnery instructors per day. This training is given only to operational crews.

Nine new crews were given pre-operational training in October. This training follows generally the same line as given operational crews, but differs only in that more concentrated training on above mentioned trainers plus orientation lectures and films are given.

OPERATIONAL NARRATIVE

Mission #115

BERLIN

27 August 1944

All of the centers of aircraft production, engines, parts and final assembly, around Berlin were selected for further bombing in today's mission. Spandau, Tegel, Genshagen, Johannisthal, Schonfeld, Marienfelde, Borsdorf, Granienburg, Annahof and Gerasdorf were given to 28 combat wings to bomb. The formations were to fly north over Denmark and the Baltic Sea as if to strike at the North German targets as was done two days ago.

Major Watson, Capt. Brannon led the 36-plane formation of the 457th Group which was flying as the 9th "B" CW, leaving Louth at 1123 the planes headed out over the North Sea where considerable "S"-ing was done by the Division leader to lose time. Upon nearing the Danish coast the scouting force advised the Division Leader that because of weather conditions it was impossible to continue the briefed course.

A left turn was then made with the "B" Wing following in trail. Other Wings turned around. A northerly course was held for a short period and then a 180 turn to the south was made in an apparent attempt to locate a target of opportunity. At 1350 a Division recall was received but the Division Leader again headed north over Denmark with the 9th "B" Wing in trail. Half an hour later he turned west toward the coast. At which point the "B" Wing left him and headed for England. High clouds running north and south over Denmark was a barrier to the compact formations of American heavy bombers.

The planes of the 457th Group returned to the base about 1800 without having dropped their bombs.

Mission #117

LUDWIGSHAFEN

3 September 1944

The group took part today in an attack by nine combat wings on the synthetic oil plant of the great I. B. Farbenindustrie at Ludwigshafen. Fifteen other wings of the 8th Air Force Heavies struck at gun positions in the Brest Area.

Forming the 9th "B" Wing and flying second in the Division, the 457th took off at 0650 hours and headed south across the English Channel to the former Normandy bridgehead, turned and skirted Paris on the North, crossing France to an I.P. on the German border west of Karlsruhe. The bomb run was made on a heading different from briefed due to the division's leader's being south of course.

About fifty minutes before bombs away Lt. Colonel Wilson in the lead ship turned the lead over to the Number 3 aircraft commander, Lt. Lyons, since the PFF equipment in both the Number 1 and Number 2 aircraft was not functioning normally. On this particular mission all three aircraft in the first element were PFF aircraft.

There had been heavy cloud over the continent enroute to the target, and in the target area the undercast was almost 10/10. On the bomb run the lead aircraft made a manual run because the AFGE was not functioning properly. The leader dropped from 25,000 feet on a magnetic heading of 34 degrees, and all three boxes bombed on his smoke markers. The bomb loading was 4x1000 lb. GP's and 4x17 IB's.

[REDACTED]

Flak at the target was moderate to intense and fairly accurate. Thirteen aircraft sustained battle damage but none was lost. The return from the target was made across France and to base without incident.

Mission #118

LUDWIGSHAFEN

8 September 1944

The group returned to Ludwigshafen today for the second successive time, forming one of the 23 combat wings of the 8th Air Force, sent against an oil refinery, M/Y, tank and armored vehicle factory and ordnance plant in the Rhineland. The primary and PFF targets were the same sections of the enormous I. B. Farbenindustrie as on the previous mission.

Taking off at 0625 hours and flying ninth in the division, the group flew across France, passing just north of Paris, to an I.P. only a little farther west of Karlsruhe than on the earlier Ludwigshafen attack. The bombing, according to the field order, was to be by individual boxes, whether visual or PFF. As it turned out, "backeye red" -- the new weather scouting force of P-51's -- gave accurate metro information over VHF concerning the target area, and the group prepared to bomb visually. Cloud coverage being heavy before the I.P., the lead aircraft made good use of PFF equipment for navigation toward the target. At the target there was only about 3/10 to 5/10 coverage, but there was also smoke from the bombs of the eight other wings first on the target. The lead box dropped by triangulation through the smoke choosing the primary MPI -- the synthetic ammonia and nitric acid plant -- while the low and high boxes chose the more visible PFF MPI -- the synthetic oil plant which had been the target of the mission of 3 September. SAV photos subsequently indicated that the lead box bombs fell considerably beyond the MPI, some however landing in the M/Y, and that the low box hit closer, the actual MPI being about 870 feet from the assigned. There were no pictures from the high box. The lead box bombed from 26,000 feet on a magnetic heading of 56 degrees. All three boxes carried 1000 pound GP's.

Flak as on 3 September was moderate to intense but more accurate, 17 ships being battle-damaged. Again, however none were lost and the group returned from the target across France uneventfully except that it was necessary to fly at 28,000 feet in eastern France to avoid clouds.

MANNHEIM

9 September 1944

Although Ludwigshafen was briefed for a possible visual primary target today, heavy cloud coverage caused the three 12 s/c boxes dispatched by this Group to choose the M/Y at Mannheim as its PFF target. Being the sixth group in the Division formation, we comprised the 9th "C" Wing, all other wings in this force having the same MPI's. The targets assigned to the 2nd and 3rd Divisions were the Mainz M/Y and armament works at Dusseldorf respectively.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

Taking off under hazy conditions, Major Watson led the group on the briefed course over England, departing from the coast at Clacton. Entering the enemy coast above Dunkirk, a direct southeast route was followed to approximately 0336Z, at which point the formation flew about 18 miles left of course in trail of the Division. At the last turn before the I.P., however, the formation returned to course.

With swelling cumulus increasing to 8/10 near the target, the formation approached the town of Mannheim to bomb by PFF. The group was now flying at 25,000 feet and proceeding on the bomb run. Three of four jet-propelled aircraft skirted the formation from a safe distance, but the fighter support was good and the E/A did not choose to attack. Trouble developed in the PFF equipment of the lead ship however, and the lead was turned over to Lt. Grisky flying the deputy PFF A/C. The APCE functioned smoothly on the run and the 500 pound GP's and leaflets were released at about 1050 hours on the smoke markers of the Deputy Wing Leader.

Ten-tenths clouds obscured the pattern area of the bombs, but small breaks in the clouds at bombs away permitted estimation of the bomb hits. The pattern of the strikes appeared in Waldhof, the northern part of the city of Mannheim, about 12,000 feet from the assigned MPI. Since several aircraft salvaged their bombs there was no doubt a concentration of bursts below the pattern covering an industrial area and the railroad bridge across the Industrie Hofen.

After bombs away the group turned right and swung back again to the I.P., the course out coinciding with the briefed course in.

The moderate to intense flak encountered at the target was accurate and of the tracking type. The crews were surprised, however, by unplotted flak at Germersheim on the route back. Although it was quite accurate, only 12 guns were reported firing. Enemy activity at this point was noted. Crews reported observing vehicles of an armored force crossing the Rhine eastward at Germersheim as well as a concentration of barges along the river banks.

At 1315 the enemy coast was reached. The Wing began a normal let-down over the Channel and returned to base, the last plane landing at 1425 hours. All planes returned safely, only 4 planes receiving major damage and 13 minor.

Mission #120

GAGGENAU

10 September 1944

Major Smith led the Group today over the motor transport plant at Gaggenau, Germany. Carrying 500 pound GP bombs the Forts took off at 0715 hours under a clear sky. Three other combat wings were being simultaneously dispatched from other 1st Division bases in this coordinated attack on Gaggenau. At 0922 the formation left the English coast just east of Beachy Head and winged its way across the channel. Patchy stratocumulus clouds floated lazily by below the bombers as they climbed to 16,000 feet the altitude at which they reached the French coast. Entering the continent a few miles north of the mouth of the Saone River, the group flew the route as briefed.

[REDACTED]

Approximately four minutes east of St. Quentin an unfortunate accident occurred. Aircrafts #451 and 456, piloted by Lts. Gay and Passmore respectively, collided in mid-air and the latter plane broke into just behind the radio compartment. Lt. Page, the navigator, and the tail gunner, Sgt. Chimerinsky, were the only ones able to parachute to safety and eventually return to the base. Lts. Sale and Nordan, the navigator and bombardier of #451, bailed out, although the A/C turned back and landed safely at the base. Sun glare apparently caused #451 to pull up suddenly, resulting in the collision.

The formation proceeded without further incident toward the I.P. Over Metz only scattered light bursts of flak were encountered, but it was fairly accurate. As the group turned into the bomb run 1-2/10 clouds dotted the skies. Flying at 25,000 feet a visual sighting was made. The 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  aircraft that remained flew a heading of 85 degrees magnetic and at the end of the 27 nautical mile run, the bombs were dropped at 1101 hours. By this time the guns at the target had picked up the formation and were tracking it for 2 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 3 minutes. The fire was as moderate and accurate.

Although 3/4 of the pattern was obscured by smoke, photographs revealed that the lead box dropped 1,000 feet short of the MPI. The low box evidently mistook an industrial plant at Horden (2 miles south of the MPI) for the target and dropped its bombs in that area. The bombs of the high box fell in open fields NW of the assigned MPI.

Fighter support consisting of P-51's and P-38's was good and no attacks by E/A occurred throughout the mission. After bombs away the group did a turn to the left and followed the briefed route home. As the formation passed over a point believed to be about 40 miles south of Nancy, A/C #086, piloted by Lt. Hampton, was hit by small calibre fire. The ship was then between 4,000 and 6,000 feet altitude. The tail and waist gunner bailed out and are still MIA, the pilot crash-landed his A/C in a field near Joigny, France, and the remainder of the crew later returned.

The group let down to 5,000 feet upon reaching Felixstowe on the English coast. The planes landed at 1400 and when battle damage was estimated only 8 ships had received any hits of importance, 4 bombers receiving minor damage. Three planes had been lost on this mission.

Mission #121

LAUTA - T/O

12 September 1944

While the 2nd and 3rd Divisions attacked targets in the Munster-Bonn and Magdeburg areas on this date, eight combat wings of the 1st Division were dispatched against oil targets in the Ruhland area. The 457th Bomb Group comprised the 9th "A" GSW with Major Francis as air commander.

Taking off at 0730 in a hazy, but cloudless atmosphere, the group winged its way to Cromer, leaving the English coast at 0838. Flying the route as briefed the formation headed northeast across the North Sea. Landfall was made at 1027 on the west coast of the Schleswig-Holstein. Turning right the planes headed southeast to a point 20 miles northeast of Berlin where they again turned south toward the I.P.

At the turning point near Berlin, the group was attacked by 30 to 50 FW-190's, the battle lasting from 1127 to 1130 hours. The preceding wing which was flying relatively poor formation bore the brunt of the damage, since 6 to 8 of their planes were knocked out. Most of the attacks were made on the tail - both high and low. E/A were persistent in closing in, following crippled A/C down with continuous fire. Although one of our planes was lost to enemy fighters, our claims were 2 destroyed.

4/10 - 6/10 cumulus to 8,000 feet were now gathering over Germany. As the formation continued south to the I.P. the group turned in to the bomb run to attack on an axis of approximately 330 degrees magnetic from 28,000 feet. All three boxes dropped 500-lb GP's on what at the time was believed to be the primary target, but which later was learned to be the aluminum works at Lauts. Bombs away of the lead box was at 1214 hours. Existing clouds had made it impossible to locate the target area until the formation was halfway down the bomb run. Triangulation had to be used.

Fifty-nine of the 80 bursts from the lead box were plotted on strike photos and they covered the aluminum foundry and furnaces in great density. Bombs from the low box caused extensive damage to the reduction furnace and ferro-vanadium plant. The high box pictures showed a fire in the generator house, the most crucial building in the whole area. Considering the fact that bombs from no other group fell in the target area, good results can be claimed by the 457th in the bombing of this T/O.

The route out was flown on course. The high box was never able to rejoin the formation and proceeded to base by itself. A normal letdown was carried out over the channel and the English coast reached at Orfordness at 1513. The planes landed at 1540 with a score of 3 crews missing and 1 dead due to anoxia.

Flak encountered at Berlin for about 5 minutes was moderate, accurate and of the tracking type. Just after the target for about 10 minutes it was meagre to moderate and fair in accuracy. No battle damage was sustained.

Mission #122

LUTSKENDORF-GIESSEN

13 September 1944

Thirty-six aircraft were dispatched by this group to attack the synthetic oil plant at Lutskendorf. This target was bombed last on 12 May 1944 with only minor results. Lt. Col. Wilson was air commander of this mission in which the 457th comprised the 94th "A" CW, third in the Division over the target. Take-off was at 0645 with 2 to 3/10 high cirrostratus. Leaving the English coast at Orfordness, the group crossed the Channel and made landfall over Belgium. At a point southeast of Cologne the formation turned ENE toward the I.P.

After a 5-minute bomb run on the primary target, the lead box dropped its load of 500-lb GP's at 1108 from 27,900 feet. Although smoke covered most of the target area, a partial pattern was photographed starting at the western end of the target extending into the town as far as 2500 feet from the MPI. One explosion in oil tanks was noted in the area.

Fair results were observed from bombs of the high and low box, which hit the southern end of the M/Y at Giessen. Bombs away were at 1158 from 25,500 feet after two fly-overs. Although no flak was encountered at Giessen, moderate tracking fire, fairly accurate lasted for about 3 minutes at Lutsken-dorf. As a result 12 planes received minor damage and 1 major. Turning to the left the group reassembled and flew the briefed course back to base.

The continent was left at the same point as that of entry and after reaching Clacton, the planes landed at 1115.

Mission #123

NIJMEGEN

17 September 1944

The historic mission flown by the group on this day was the tactical bombing of the Siegfried Line prior to the Allied Airborne landings in Nijmegen, Holland. German tanks and guns had to be knocked to make it possible for our armies to break the "Line" in an attempt to outflank the Nazi forces in the Lowlands.

Four twelve-aircraft boxes were dispatched at 0630 with Major Hosier as Group Commander. Simultaneously 420 A/C of the 3rd Division took off to attack targets north and west of the 1st Division. We were "B" CW and 2nd in the Division. After assembling at 13,000 feet on Clacton Buncher the group flew the briefed route over England. Between point "B" and control point #1 a Division delay of thirty minutes was ordered and the formation made a 180 degree turn in the direction of the base to lose time. The group then returned to course and followed in trail of the 94th "A" Combat Wing.

The Belgium Coast was crossed at 0841. At a point near Brussels, the formation headed northeast into the I.P., but swung right of course. In the area of Weert, Holland the lead A/C of the lead box, #42-97951, was hit by flak. The Deputy was also hit, but it was necessary for it to take over the lead and a corrected heading was established. Since it was necessary for the Deputy to make a manual run, several check points were picked up and the run was made without incident.

The 260-lb fragmentation bombs were dropped on the target at 0938 from 18,000 feet. Only meagre, inaccurate flak was thrown up from Nijmegen and no enemy aircraft opposed the bombers. The pattern of the group's bombs covered the whole of an area 12,000 feet long and 4,000 feet wide along the edge of the Reichswald on the Dutch-German frontier near Nijmegen with very good results.

After bombs away, the formation turned right and returned to the point at which they had begun the bomb run, almost due south of the target. The #3 and #4 boxes never did rally and proceeded to base individually. The route in was retraced on the run home and a normal let-down was executed, over the channel. Clacton was reached on the English Coast again and the planes landed at 1120.

[REDACTED]

Lt. Stroezer landed plane #42-77190 in Belgium with two engines out and another damaged. Besides the loss of one plane and crew, the group had 5 planes with major damage and 11 with minor.

Mission #124

SOEST

19 September 1944

Three boxes were dispatched today to deal a blow at railway transportation in Soest, vital to the German forces fighting in Holland and the Ruhr. Other 8th Air Force heavies were to attack the M/T at Hamm as well as targets in Bielefeld, Munster, Gsnabruck and Balsbregen. As "A" Combat Wing of the 94th, the group took off at 0930 and assembled on Glatton Buncher 4,000 feet above briefed altitude because of weather. The English coast was left at Lowestoft and the group led the Division across the channel. At 1204 the Belgium coast was crossed. The formation then flew the briefed course across northern Belgium, swinging south of the Cologne flak area and then northeast to the I.P.

The lead box turned on the I.P. on course. For the first five minutes of the run, nothing was visible on the ground. It then opened up for about 4.5 seconds, and the bombardier was able to perform a sighting operation on the target.

The low box bombed in trail. Automatic pilot functioned normally, and no difficulties other than weather conditions were encountered. Cloud coverage over the target was 8/10.

The high box did not have proper interval at the I.P. since the low box was behind schedule. The high box swung wide and to the right. Contrails from the lead box were now making it impossible to see the ground. It then became necessary to move back to the left. When this was done the bombardier was able to see the ground and realize that the formation was on the eastern tip of the lakes heading approximately 40 degrees to the left of the briefed course. An attempt was made to turn back to the target, but by the time the formation levelled out it had passed the bomb release line. It then continued on to a target of opportunity.

In the meantime, the lead and low box had dropped its load of 500-lb GP's on the primary, although results could not be observed. The time was 1339 on a mag heading of 344 degrees. Bombing altitude was 25,000 feet.

Nine A/C of the high box became separated from the lead squadron because of dense contrails and generally bad weather. These planes salvoed their bombs on Hamm, Germany at 1410 from 22,600 feet on a heading of 0 degrees magnetic. The Wing leader had deviated to the right of course in order to locate a target of opportunity for the remaining three A/C in the high box. These planes dropped their bombs on Emmerick on the Rhine River at 1345 from 25,000 feet. The magnetic heading was 233 degrees on a 2 minute bomb run.

Since two other formations were parallel on the briefed route back, the Wing continued to the right of course. Over the channel a division message was received and the Wing headed northwest in the direction of Lowestoft. With landing times from 1600 on 15 A/C came down at Tibenham, 2 at Warboys, 2 at Nopal, 3 at Snetterton Heath, 3 at Farsfield, 2 at Thorpe Abbots, 1 at Bungay, 1 at Methwold, 1 at Snettishall, 1 at Watton, 1 at Ely, 1 at Bassingbourne and 1 at Hardwick. 3 A/C returned immediately to home base.

Only flak encountered was at Hamm, described as moderate but accurate. However, all ships returned safely with no battle damage.

FRANKFURT

25 September 1944

Thirty-six A/C were dispatched on this date to form the 94th "B" Combat Wing attacking the east M/X in Frankfurt, Germany. The rail lines in the city were handling extra heavy traffic for the western front and our Ground Forces were anxious that they be knocked out. Carrying twelve 500-lb GP's per A/C, the group took off at 0710 led by Lt. Col. Francis. No clouds hampered the assembly over Glatton Buncher at 11,000 feet although haze had restricted visibility to 3 miles on take-off.

A good formation was maintained upon leaving the buncher and the route over England was flown according to schedule and on course. The English coast was crossed at 0913 and our position was eighth in the Division. Entering Belgium near Ostend, the Wing gradually found itself flying about 40 miles south of course due to a 50 degree difference in the winds from those briefed. As individual wing navigators realized the situation and began to cut back north, a 50-mile front of combat wings soon resulted. The 457th however, reached the I.P. on time (1035) and on course.

Thick altostratus and cumulus to 12,000 feet had been gathering over Belgium, and by the time the wing reached the I.P. the ground was completely obscured by altostratus reaching to 20,000 feet. The formation flew at 26,000 feet as it turned into the bomb run on a magnetic heading of 146 degrees. The Wing Leader gave the box leaders a PFF target and asked them to trail him in visual bombing formation so as not to risk the target being uncovered at the last minute. Another wing turned at the I.P. behind "B" Wing and both were on the bomb run at the same time, the other wing being 2,000 feet higher. The group found it impossible to bomb without being hit by bombs falling from the wing above, so it made a 360.

The second run in from the I.P. lasted 5 minutes and the Micky Operator was able to pick up the target that had been agreed upon. The AFCE functioned smoothly and the bombs were dropped at 1102. At this point the enemy began putting up a moderate AA barrage, but it was low and south of the formation.

After bombs away, the Wing was reformed and since no Division formation could be seen, the group took off for Glatton again flying just south of the briefed course. The weather over the continent on the return trip was the same as that in, with light, non-persistent contrails above 18,000 feet. Solid undercast at the target had made bomb results unobservable.

[REDACTED]

A normal let-down was begun from the target and control of individual boxes was released to the box leaders over the English Coast. The Wing then proceeded to base without incident and landed at 1400 hours. Fighter support had been excellent and all planes returned without any battle damage whatsoever. One A/C had to drop half its bomb load on a T/O (Friedberg, Germany).

Mission #126

OSNABRUCK

26 September 1944

The entire 1st Division was dispatched on this date to destroy the Railroad M/I at Osnabruck which is considered the gateway to northern Germany. Since it is capable of handling over 2,200 cars per day, the destruction of this target would produce a severe bottleneck in the delivery of war materials and supplies. Other attacks for the day were to be on targets in Hamm and Bremen by the 2nd and 3 Divisions respectively.

Col. Rogner led the group which made up the 94th "C" Combat Wing, 3rd in the Division. Carrying five 1000 pounders, the planes took off at 1056 with cumulus from 2500 feet covering half the sky. Leaving Louth at 1303 the Wing crossed the channel over 3/10 cumulus and entered Holland over the Zuider Zee. The course up to this point had been flown somewhat north of that briefed. At 1404 the I.P. near Hengelo, Holland was reached and the formation turned into the bomb run on a magnetic heading of 76 degrees. Clear weather over the target not only permitted visual bombing but caused the planes to be seen targets. Although the flak thrown up from Osnabruck was moderate in intensity, it was accurate for altitude and deflection.

At 1413 the bombs were dropped from 27,000 feet. The only strike photos available were those of the low box and showed good coverage over the M/I all around the MFI for both the lead and low boxes. Some bomb hits extended into the Klockerwerke with the majority inside a 1000 foot circle.

While over the primary target, it was necessary for the high box leader to withhold his bombs to avoid dropping on the low box. Two other aircraft likewise withheld their bombs and dropped with the leader at 1440 on a T/O - an airfield at 5227-0757 E. Due to mechanical failure, 1 A/C had to salvo its bombs at a point 5 miles east of the primary.

Instead of withdrawing to the southeast from the target as briefed, the formation continued out east on a heading of 85 degrees magnetic, then swung north back to the briefed return route.

Crossing back over the Zuider Zee the Wing encountered light but accurate tracking flak on the Dutch coast. Plane #42-32079 piloted by Lt. Gooch was hit either in the cockpit or bomb bay and the top turret was blown off. #3 and #4 engines were feathered. The plane was last seen at 5235-0437 E, apparently under control. No chutes were observed. This was the only plane lost to flak, and no enemy fighters were encountered during the entire mission.

Over mid-channel the formation swung north of course again entering

[REDACTED]

England at 1620 between Great Yarmouth and Cromer. The last plane landed at 1656 hours.

Beside the missing crew of 9, 1 man was wounded and 1 killed. 7 planes had received minor damage and only 1 major.

Mission #127

COLOGNE

27 September 1944

Typical fall overcast on the target prevented the group from visual bombing of a manufacturing and synthetic oil plant in the Cologne area. However the group did set out to drop its 500 pounders on the city and despite the fact that PFF had to be used, the results were observed as fair. Targets of the 2nd and 3rd Divisions were all vital factories and transportation centers in the Ruhr Valley.

With Major Syptak as Group Leader, the planes took off at 0640. A thick layer of altocumulus up to 12,000 feet covered the field at time of take-off, and the crews found the same conditions along the route in to the target itself.

The group assembled on Glatton Buncher at 16,000 feet and departed from Southwold at 0837. At the Division assembly line, the 94th "C" Group was approximately a minute early with the other two groups behind it instead of parallel as they should have been.

Upon reaching the Dutch coast over the Scheldt Estuary, the group began to "S" on course in order to assume its proper position as part of the fourth task force in the 1st Division. The course to the I.P. ESE of Cologne was flown as briefed although the group arrived 1 minute late (0926) because of the necessity of remaining in Division formation.

As the ships approached the target they were greeted by a barrage of flak lasting for approximately 4 minutes. Although of moderate intensity, it was accurate enough to inflict major damage on 3 planes and minor damage on 5.

Five minutes before the I.P. was reached the scouting force had been contacted and they had reported overcast conditions on the target. It was necessary to bomb PFF. Through breaks in the clouds just before the bomb release line the Lead Bombardier observed that the formation was on course, heading toward the two bridges on the bend of the Rhine River. At 0935 1/2 the bombs were released. The formation was then at 24,000 feet flying a heading of 102 degrees magnetic. The majority of the hits were in an area 9,000 feet NE of the assigned MPI around the approaches to the Cologne-Mulheim bridge. A few bombs fell in Mulheim where one small explosion was noted.

After bombs away the formation swung to the right and followed the Rhine River toward Koblenz. Just north of Koblenz the planes were tracked for about eight minutes by meagre, inaccurate flak. Swinging east again, the group flew the briefed route out, although it was 7 minutes ahead of schedule because of winds. The Belgium coast was left over Ostend at 1105 and a normal let-down was carried out over the Channel. The English coast was reached at the same point again and the formation landed without incident at 1235 to find the field enveloped in rain and solid overcast.

No planes had been lost and fighter support had been good throughout the mission.

RECREATION AND WELFARE

1. Special Services

In the way of stage shows for the month of October, Special Service had on 22 October the USO show "Bits and Pieces" and on 1 October another USO show "What's Cookin". Both of these shows were considered very good by all that attended them. On the 30 October the G.I. Variety Show, "It's All Yours Buddy" played at this station. This show was quite a treat because there were several gorgeous WAC's in the show and the boys were treated to some very good numbers both in the way of jokes and musical numbers. The best number was the strip-tease act put on by the beautiful blonde Donna. The fellows were very much disappointed when they found out that Donna was a boy.

In the way of dances there were several chances for those so inclined. The 748th Bomb Squadron had their squadron dance on 3 October. "The Fireballs" played for this dance and as there was plenty of feminine pulchritude present naturally everyone had a very good time. The Officers Club had their dance on 14 October. It was considered a very fine dance by all that attended. The 748th Bomb Squadron Officers had a dance 22 October. All those who were fortunate enough to be present had the time of their lives. Other dances for the EM were the 6th, the 13th, 20th and 27 October. The attendance at these dances was very good and the behavior perfect. Probably the reason for the perfect behavior is the new ruling that none of the female guests can stray away from the Aero Club with her favorite wolf.

In the field of sports there has been a touch football league organized. There are eight teams in this league and there have been some very fine games so far. We are looking forward to a very successful season in touch football. The station touch football team journeyed over to station 128 and lost 12-0. We promise to even things up when they return the game.

In the field of education this station led the division in attendance at Army Talks passing the 2000 mark by the last of October. The most interesting discussions on the most talked about subjects of the day included "U. S. Foreign Policy", "German Civilian Attitude Toward U. S." and other educational topics. There was also a considerable increase in the number of applications for USAFI courses.

The Aero Club continued its excellent work in October. Participation there was in Ping-pong, pool, chess, checkers, library, recordings and refreshments. There was also a Halloween party attended by approximately 100 EM. There were refreshments and everyone had a nice time. The gymnasium was widely used during October by all those interested in keeping fit.

2. American Red Cross

Red Cross social activities for October were very successful. The Birthday Party this month showed great improvement over the last one in both attendance and planning. Each enlisted man who had a birthday in October was sent an invitation and invited to bring a buddy. The invitations were written in red ink and the men were so pleased with them that one called and said he was sorry he couldn't come but "could he keep his invitation"! The party was in the lounge, and the tables and chairs were arranged around the fireplace. Different colored pieces of paper were used as doilies, and there was a red or green candle on each table. The only light in the room was that of the fire and the candles, and it was quite effective. While the boys were being served, they sang any and every song they wanted to. The kitchen really gave the party a boost with the big chocolate cake on which was written in white letters, "Happy Birthday, October".

While they were eating, the staff assistants gave each man a birthday present, a package of cigarettes wrapped in tissue paper and tied with red ribbon. There was also a fortune for each boy. When they had all read each others' fortunes, they played charades. The best thing of all was the thrill it seemed to give the boys to be remembered on their birthdays.

The other major party of the month was the Halloween Party. This was well attended despite the fact that it fell on the pay-day when most G.I.'s go to town. One can always depend on a good turnout when one promises a show to the men. Although the show could have stood a little rehearsing, it proved satisfactory and appropriate for the occasion. It was discovered that one of the Bombardiers is an accomplished magician, and he very willingly agreed to be the featured event at the Halloween Party. He had a number of card tricks, cigarette tricks and silk handkerchiefs that changed color at the words "Hocus Pocus."

Refreshments were all free that night, cookies, apples, chocolate cake with orange icing. Here poster paints were a life saver. It was discovered that a drop of poster paint is excellent coloring for frostings -- guaranteed not to kill. The food was laid out on a long side board which had snowy white cloth and an attractive centerpiece of evergreen, tinsel and pumpkins.

After the show which lasted almost an hour, there was a darts game. The boys aimed at the eyes, nose and mouth of a pumpkin. For prizes there were the traditional cigars.

Terry Mack, accordionist, made his first appearance in the Snack Bar this month. The room was crowded and the response was excellent. If the G.I.'s had had their way, he would have played that accordion all night long.

The S-2 lectures, presented each week by Capt. James G. France, have become increasingly popular with the men. At the last one for this month, a lead navigator was brought in as guest speaker, and the men pounded him with questions during the whole hour. They enjoyed this session so much that at its close they surrounded the navigator and kept firing questions at him.

4. Office of Public Relations

The Office of Public Relations has as its main function the raising of morale on the home front through the medium of the home town newspaper. An average of 450 stories are sent out monthly to approximately 800 newspapers in the United States.

Award stories are written on all personnel. They include among others, the Air Medal, Air Medal with clusters, Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star, Soldiers' Medal and Silver Star.

Announcement of promotions of both air and ground personnel are released and feature stories on officers and enlisted men in both echelons are written when the occasion warrants.

Daily news coverage of missions is made by this office and sent to higher headquarters for release. The report sent in includes the name of the target, flak encountered, enemy aircraft seen, estimated results, and weather. Quotes from the men who have flown the mission and have made observations or have encountered extreme difficulty are forwarded for immediate release to the press.

Officers and enlisted men are given the opportunity of appearing on the British Broadcasting Corporation, whenever possible, and their nearest relatives cabled of their expected appearance on the air.

A bulletin board is maintained near the Public Relations Office and exhibits key stories which have been released for publication. Also, clippings of published stories are placed on the board as well as photo shots taken in the air and around the base.

When deemed advisable, an all-out effort is made to cover an entire section for a release to the States. Recently the gunnery section was photographed and releases were made of equipment and personnel together with stories of home town and general interest.

Five censored prints of a combat nature are given to each officer and enlisted man who has completed a tour of missions and is on orders to leave the base. The original prints were checked by the Theatre Censor and stamped in accordance with existing regulations. The prints, which follow, are produced by the men in the Photo Lab under the direction of Lt. Duane Zemper. These men spend long hours turning out hundreds of these pictures daily, so that the Public Relations Office may have a worthy souvenir to distribute to returning combat crews.

The department is constantly on the alert for stories and pictures which will boost morale on the base as well as on the home front.

Lt. Colonel Leroy H. Watson

Lieutenant Colonel Leroy H. Watson, Jr., son of Major General Leroy H. Watson, Sr. has been decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross together with an Oak Leaf Cluster.

Colonel Watson was decorated for achieving outstanding success in leading his group on a series of bombing assaults on important targets in Germany and Nazi occupied Continental Europe. While the Colonel was commanding a formation attacking a particularly vital strategic target in Germany, the enemy sent up a terrific anti-aircraft barrage which threatened to disrupt the battle formation, but his ability met the test. Marshalling the planes with exemplary leadership, he guided them through the sky with excellent evasive action and succeeded in achieving a perfect bomb run. Bombs were accurately dropped on the target and another installation was definitely destroyed. On another occasion, ground haze obscured the aiming point and the target, thereby making it extremely difficult to score a hit again, but by superior airmanship, Colonel Watson maneuvered into a position which aided the bombardiers to drop the bombs with deadly accuracy.

As Air Commander, he has led formations in assaults on industrial plants and marshalling yards in the Berlin area, synthetic oil refineries and aero-engine plants in Leipzig and ball-bearing factories in Schweinfurt.

After graduating from the Boys High School, Atlanta, Georgia, he determined to follow in the footsteps of his father, Major General L. H. Watson, Sr., now serving with the U. S. Ground Forces in France. He attended the Army Preparatory School at Fort McPherson and entered the United States Military Academy and graduated with the Class of 1941. Then followed courses at the Armored Force School, Fort Knox, Kentucky. The great need for trained personnel in the Air Corps, led him to take up flying and after an intensive and rigorous training period received his wings.

[REDACTED]

Colonel Watson is also the Operations Officer of this Group and in this capacity plans the order of battle. He is the director of the ground school maintained for the constant training of combat crews. His efficient working habits, complete knowledge of training techniques, and his strict sense of devotion to duty have helped to make this group an important factor in the Eighth Air Force's huge daylight bombing assaults against the Nazi war machine.

Major Charles P. Nelson

Major Charles P. Nelson has been decorated with the Bronze Star Medal, it was announced by the Commanding General, Eighth Air Force. Major Nelson was this Group's Intelligence Officer up to the time of his recent transfer. In this capacity he has rendered this organization such highly valuable information and advice. He organized an efficient intelligence section that has been extremely instrumental in making it possible for the Fortresses from here to continue to participate in the Eighth Air Force's huge daylight bombing assaults against the Nazi war machine. His knowledge of all phases of intelligence work, photo interpretation and photography have made him a highly respected and invaluable member of this group. Working under many obstacles, Major Nelson has briefed combat crews with such accuracy that when they are over enemy targets their duty of destroying them is much simpler and much less dangerous. His unceasing efforts, devotion to duty and high degree of technical skill have made him one of the leading combat intelligence officers in England.

A graduate of Colby College, Major Nelson was a practicing attorney before entering the Army Air Forces in 1942.

Major Harry E. Lawrence

Major Harry E. Lawrence has been decorated with the Bronze Star Medal, it was recently announced by the commanding general, Eighth Air Force.

As this Group's Engineering Officer, Major Lawrence has achieved much recognition and respect for the remarkable job he has done to keep our Forts flying. When this group came overseas early this year Major Lawrence was confronted with the task of organizing his ground crews into smooth working skilled teams who could repair and maintain battle damaged aircraft. His soldier mechanics were trained mechanics but had never had to repair battle damaged planes or work under the strain of combat conditions. Using his experience of twenty-three years service in the Army Air Force as an enlisted member of a ground crew, Major Lawrence through hard work and understanding whipped the ground crews into as fine and efficient group of men as any in the world. Many of the men he schooled personally. Now the Forts on this base are put into combat flying condition in extremely rapid time, and the pilots have the fullest confidence in the members of their ground crew.

[REDACTED]

Major Lawrence was decorated a short time ago for his gallant and heroic actions in directing and helping with extinguishing the blaze from a Fortress which crashed on this field. He received the Soldiers Medal for this.

Major Jacob M. Dickinson

Major Jacob M. Dickinson, former squadron commander of this Group, has been one of the most outstanding members of the group in participation with the Eighth Air Force in assaults on strategic targets in Germany and Nazi occupied Continental Europe. Both as a Fortress pilot and as Air Commander of battle formations, his record is one that is superior and inspiring. A master airman and pilot, Major Dickinson has led formations to successfully knock out industrial and military installations in Berlin, Schweinfurt, Munich and Cologne. He flew on the Eighth Air Force's first bombing assault on Berlin, an historical mission that was the forerunner of many others and an answer to Hitler's boast that Berlin would not be bombed.

Brigadier General Julius K. Lacey, Wing Commander, paid high tribute to Major Dickinson for his skill and efforts in destroying marshalling yards, vital to the enemy's transportation network.

He has been decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters and the Purple Heart.

Major Dickinson is a member of an old military family. His grandfather, Jacob M. Dickinson, was Secretary of War in President Taft's cabinet and his father, Colonel Henry Dickinson, was retired after years of service in the War College, Washington, D. C.

He entered the Army Air Forces as an aviation cadet and after completing the intensive training courses, he received his wings on 29 April 1942. Last October, he joined this group as a Fortress pilot and shortly afterward was named Squadron Operations Officer.

Major Dickinson graduated from the Peabody School, Nashville, Tennessee. He then attended Marion Military Academy and Vanderbilt University.

1st Lt. Allen D. Sheakley

1st Lt. Allen D. Sheakley has been decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross, it was announced recently by the commanding general, Eighth Air Force.

Lt. Sheakley, pilot of a B-17 Flying Fortress, is a veteran of a number of daylight bombing assaults on industrial and military targets in Germany and Nazi occupied Continental Europe.

All of his skill and airmanship were required to bring his crippled Fortress back from a recent raid on a vital target in Germany. While making the bomb run, one engine, hit by flak was rendered inoperative, the propeller windmilling wildly, and another severely damaged by anti-aircraft fire. Controls and electrical wires cut so that instruments were useless. His engineer was able to splice some of the wires and with the least of equipment, he guided the plane to a safe landing in England. When the plane came to a stop, one engine burst into flame but thanks to the RAF, the fire was quickly extinguished.

Lt. Sheakley graduated from Butler High School, Butler, Pennsylvania, where he was active in sports and a member of the basketball team. He then studied engineering at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Prior to his entry into the Army Air Forces on 1 February 1943, he was employed by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio.

Corporal Price J. Hall

Corporal Price J. Hall is the non-commissioned officer in charge of the Information and Education Program at this Group. His duty is the administration, coordination and supervision of all discussion groups and courses of training in commercial and academic subjects for the personnel on the base. The entire program comes under the auspices of the Information and Education Program Branch of the United States Air Forces.

In connection with these activities, a close relationship is maintained in liaison with the British agencies for the exchange of ideas and speakers. With Lord Cranbrook, MP., Registrar of Cambridge University; John Roberts, Dean of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, Eng.; and W. S. Thatcher, Censor of Fitzwilliam College, Cambridge, Eng., he participated in a panel discussion of "British and American Relationships" at Abbots-Ripton on 16 October 1944.

[REDACTED]

Again at Peterborough on the 14th and 15th of October, he was a guest of Lord Sturdale, MP from Northamptonshire, to observe the methods of discussion and the manner of handling the educational problems in the various colonies and dominions of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Corporal Hall is a graduate of the Sacramento High School, Sacramento, California.

Prior to his entry into the Army Air Forces on 18 February 1943, he was employed by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co., San Francisco, California.

Gunnery Training

If the Luftwaffe fighter pilots counted on having a field day knocking down U. S. heavy bombers when they suddenly reappeared in the skies over Europe recently, they failed to take into consideration men like the gunnery instructors with the 457th Bombardment Group. Veterans of many daylight bombing assaults against Nazi Europe, the men engaged in gunnery training at this station were never deceived when the Forts went out time and time again and met almost no opposition from the Luftwaffe. They knew that the German Air Force was not beaten entirely; that it was merely lying low, conserving its rapidly dwindling strength. They knew the Germans were biding their time with the hope that the gunners would become careless and that a surprise attack would catch them with their guard down. That time never came. Suspecting a ruse, the gunnery instructors redoubled their efforts and had the combat men, some of whom had never seen an enemy fighter, on their toes when the surprise attacks were launched.

Even when enemy fighter opposition fell off entirely, there was no let up in the exhaustive training program that brought victory to the U. S. gunners every time they met the Luftwaffe during the past two years -- a period that produced the greatest air battles in the annals of human warfare. Day in and day out the instructors took the gunners through the training routine -- skeet shooting on the range, firing at targets towed by other aircraft, fighting off simulated attacks by our own fighters, which used the latest enemy tactics to enable our gunners to get used to training their sights on targets moving with meteoric speed. In addition the combat crew men received thorough instructions in the care and maintenance of their weapons and in aircraft recognition.

This rigid training schedule paid the gunners good dividends. When the enemy's surprise attacks finally came, the gunners were more than ready. The massed firing power of the tightly packed formations and the deadly accuracy of the gunners again proved too much for the Luftwaffe.

The efforts of men like these gunnery instructors received official recognition recently when the entire 1st Bombardment Division received a Presidential Citation for carrying out the successful attack on the enemy aircraft factories at Oschersleben, Germany, against some of the heaviest fighter opposition ever encountered. Gunnery training spoke for itself that day - 11 January 1944 - when two hundred and ten fighter planes of the Luftwaffe, the largest number ever claimed by any one division for a single mission, were knocked out of the sky for a loss of only forty-two heavy bombers. Forty-three other enemy fighters were probably destroyed and eighty-four were damaged.

This section is comprised of the following officers and enlisted men: Lieutenants Thomas Crowley, Maurice Dickinson, and Richard J. McDonald; Technical Sergeant Gordon Ellison; Staff Sergeant Randolph Lusk; and Sergeants Robert Myers, Boyd Ballenger and Elmer Veenker.
